Dear Fred,

Please accept my personal sincere "thanks" for being the keynote speaker at DayMark's annual year end celebration. It was a special night that was even made more special because of the significance of your words.

It is obvious that God has gifted you with ability to motivate and inspire others in a unique way. Your willingness to be transparent by sharing not only the joys, but the sorrows of life, provided a refreshing dose of reality of the struggles that we all face. By brining it all back to God's purpose for our life you tugged on a lot of heartstrings within our group. Many have commented on how your message has caused them to think and has had a positive impact.

As you may know, Century and DayMark's corporate creeds include both the professional and personal growth of our employees. Your words reinforced those creeds in a beautiful way. Your message of living life with a purpose could not have been more appropriate for a company celebration and, more importantly, for the message and example we strive to send our employees. After hearing what you said, many of our employees have expressed a clearer vision, motivation, and desire to accomplish excellence at work and a stronger conviction and commitment towards their personal goals in life.

Fred, we could not be more pleased at the success and influence of your time in Bowling Green and want to express our sincere thanks for all you did and gave.

May God bless you as you continue to serve him in such a special way.

Sincerely,
